Class Reading Tracker

Last year, my students and I began to track the number of books we were reading on a digital tracker. Using a Google Form, my students would enter the title of a book they had just finished. I used a chart to display the total number read so far on a separate sheet and it was a visual my class LOVED to see each day!

This year, I am adding to our class reading tracker. My students will be using a Google Form to note the title they have read...as well as the genre (choosing from 14 different genres):

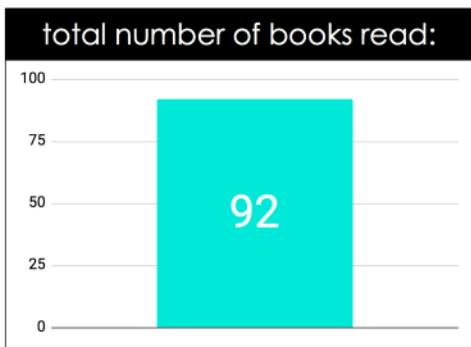

This information is then populated into an eye-catching sheet featuring two charts:
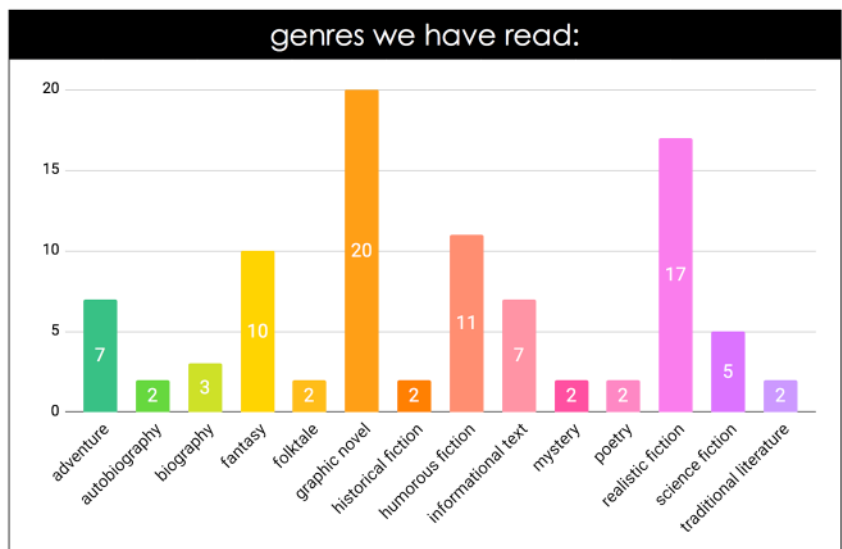

The first chart displays the current number of books read so far. It also features a place to make your next goal, as your students read more and more!
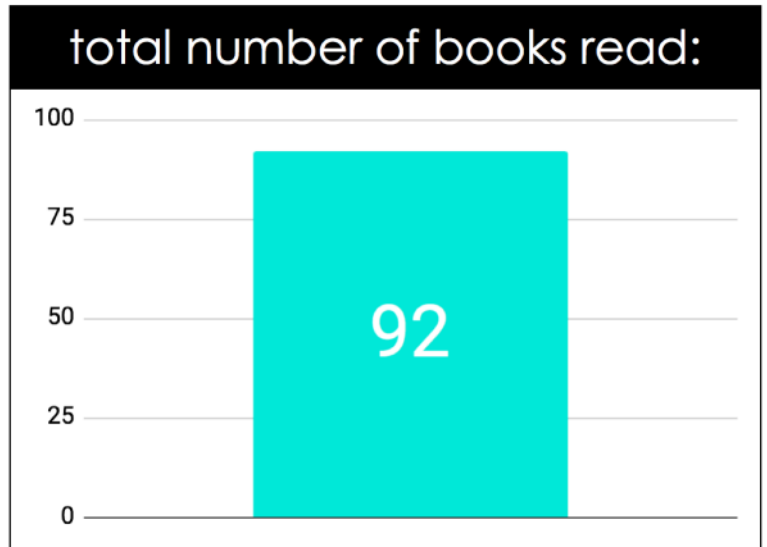

This chart can be adjusted as the year progresses. You will find tips in this resource on how to change your graph number to a higher amount and keep your class reading.
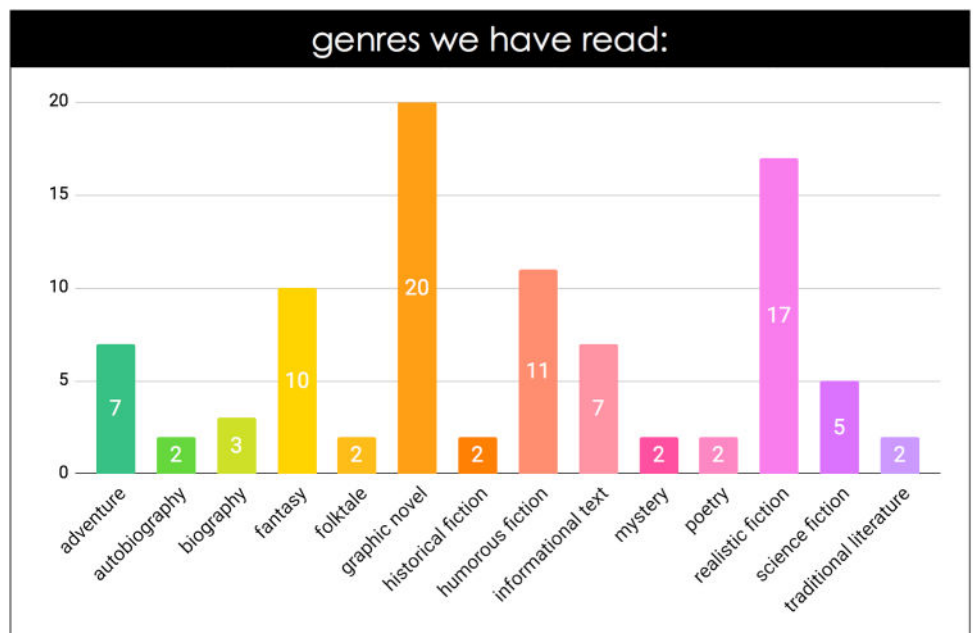

The text in the chart can be edited to best meet your needs.

The second chart tracks the genres your students have read so far. This will provide a chance to discuss your favorite genres and encourage students to try new ones.

This chart can be adjusted in two ways. The total amount can be changed (just as in the first chart). You can also eliminate any extra genres you may not need for your students (instructions on how to do so are included in the resource):

class reading TRACKER

total number of books read:

92

our next goal: 100

genres we have read:

Genre	Count
adventure	7
autobiography	2
biography	3
fantasy	10
folktale	2
graphic novel	20
historical fiction	2
humorous fiction	11
informational text	7
mystery	2
poetry	2
realistic fiction	17
science fiction	5
traditional literature	2

Please see the next page for more features…

This Class Reading Tracker features two components: a student Google Form and a visual Google Sheet for the whole class to track their reading as a community.

a student-friendly Google Form to enter their name, book title, and genre:
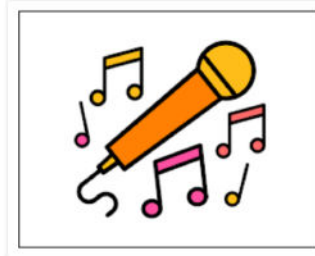

the Google Form includes colorful, eye-catching icons to help students navigate genres with ease

Class Reading Tracker

Your Name:
Your answer

Title of Book:
Your answer

Genre of Book:

☐ adventure   ☐ autobiography

☐ informational text   ☐ mystery
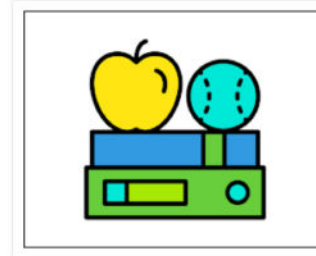

☐ poetry   ☐ realistic fiction
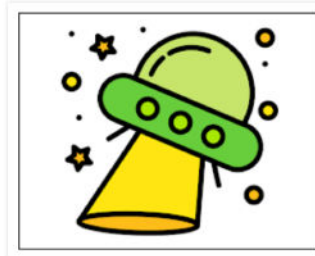

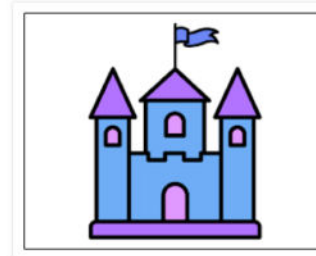

☐ science fiction   ☐ traditional literature

SUBMIT

This form can be bookmarked on your classroom devices or linked in your class website or Google Classroom page.

Ladybug's Teacher Files

Please don't hesitate to ask you should have any questions about this resource!
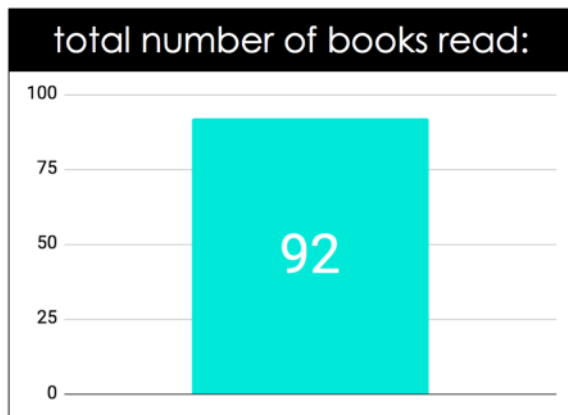

The Features

The second component is a Google Sheet to display reading progress as a class.

all student responses get entered into a chart on a separate Google Sheet to display for your class

class reading TRACKER

total number of books read:

92

our next goal: 100

the chart includes a place to create new goals for the total books read as the year progresses genres we have read:

genre	count
adventure	7
autobiography	2
biography	3
fantasy	10
folktale	2
graphic novel	20
historical fiction	2
humorous fiction	11
informational text	7
mystery	2
poetry	2
realistic fiction	17
science fiction	5
traditional literature	2

the same sheet also features a second chart of genres your students have read

This resource also includes tips on customizing these charts, to best meet the needs of your students.

Ladybug's Teacher Files

Please don't hesitate to ask you should have any questions about this resource!